The Descendants of John Whelan of Dungarvan, County Waterford, Ireland

Dungarvan is a town on the coast of County Waterford, Ireland. John Whelan's children, born in the townland of "Spring," were baptized in the Dungarvan Roman Catholic parish, most likely in the local church. Spring probably refers to Spring (Duke) found on the western outskirts of Dungarvan town. John Whelan leased land in this townland according to the 1851 Griffith's Valuation of Kilrush civil parish.[1]

First Generation

1. JOHN WHELAN, was probably born in Spring townland outside of Dungarvan, County Waterford, Ireland, about 1802.[2] He was possibly the son of John and Mary Whelan.[3] John died in Spring townland outside of Dungarvan on 23 May 1898.[4]

John was a farmer and in 1851 he leased land in Spring (Duke) townland outside of Dungarvan.[5]

John married CATHERINE SULLIVAN in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in Dungarvan on 12 February 1839.[6] The marriage was witnessed by Mary Walsh and Brigid Walsh. Catherine may have been the daughter of Edward and Catherine Sullivan.[7] She was probably born in the Dungarvan area by 1820.[8] Catherine died between 1861 and 1898.[9] She may have been the sister of John Sullivan who married Julia Whelan.[10]

Children of John and Catherine (Sullivan) Whelan:

i. JOHN WHELAN, baptized 5 March 1840 in Dungarvan with baptismal sponsors John Sullivan and Mary Whelan.[11] In 1871 he may have lived in Prestwich with Oldham parish, Lancashire, England.[12]

2 ii. CATHERINE "KATE" WHELAN, born in Spring and baptized 25 Apr 1841; married Patrick Dunne, 28 November 1863; died 7 November 1925.

iii. MARY WHELAN, born in Spring and baptized 7 June 1842 in Dungarvan with baptismal sponsors Edmund Whelan and Ellen Sullivan;[13] died probably by 11 January 1851.[14]

Second Generation

2. CATHERINE "KATE" WHELAN, daughter of John and Catherine (Sullivan) Whelan, was born in Spring and baptized in Dungarvan, County Waterford, Ireland, on 25 April 1841.[24] Her baptismal sponsors were Edmund Sullivan and Margaret Phelan. Catherine died in Springmount townland, County Waterford, Ireland, on 7 November 1925.[25] Springmount is adjacent to Spring (Duke) townland.

She lived in the townland of Curraheen Commons when she was enumerated on the 1901 and 1911 Census of Ireland.[26] Curraheen Commons is also adjacent to Spring (Duke) townland.

Catherine married PATRICK DUNNE in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in Dungarvan on 28 November 1863.[27] The marriage was witnessed by William Dunne and Brigid Terry. Patrick was probably born in the Dungarvan area possibly circa 1841.[28] He may have died in 1908.[29]

Children of Patrick and Catherine (Whelan) Dunne:

i. MARY DUNNE, born in Springmount on 29 April 1866 and baptized in Dungarvan on 29 April 1866 with baptismal sponsors James Dunne and Johanna Whelan.[30]

ii. CATHERINE "KATE" DUNNE, born in Spring on probably on 14 April 1868 and baptized in Dungarvan on 14 April 1868 with baptismal sponsors John Dunne and Ellen Quirk.[31]

[130] For birth see Ringville District, Ireland, Birth Records, 7 Apr 1892, Margaret Neale; "Baptismal/Birth Records," RootsIreland.ie (http://www.rootsireland.ie/). For baptism see Birth Register for the Parish of Ring, 6 Mar 1892, Margaret Neill daughter of Michael Neill and Mary Whelan; "Baptismal/Birth Records," RootsIreland.ie (http://www.rootsireland.ie/). Her birth and baptism dates conflict. It is possible her civil birth was registered late and a later birth date given to avoid a fine.
